The sterilization of 15,000,000 Americans is a surprising feature of Mrs. E. H. which she has established a great laboratory at Cold Springs Harbor, N. Y.

With this announcement in the New York American of today came the stateat its disposal financial aid from John D. Rockefeller and Andrew Carnegle and scientific advice from Alexander Graham Rell, who already has done much research work in eugenics. Many their approval to the undertaking.

Work Going On Years.

For four years preliminary work has been quietly conducted, not only at Cold Springs Harbor, but by field workers all over the world. To Sterilize Defectives.

The organization, after its four years work in this country and Europe, reached the conclusion that sterilizing defectives was the greatest work before them. The committee on sterilization in its report issued yesterday demands the sterilization of 92,400 persons in this country this year.

The committee estimates that it will be essential similarly to treat annually an increasing number as the population increases until, in 1989, 415,000 persons in the United States alone will be sterilized every year. When that time arrives there will have developed, the committee believes, a practically perfect manhood and womanhood. manhood and womanhood

the composition of the company

The late Charles Frohman stated on was new last season and has never his last visit to Washington that he attributed at least part of his success to the fact that he instructed his actors. his playwrights, and his producers that 50 per cent of the success of a play depended upon the way the performers made the audience work while the play is being produced. Another well-known Carnegie Also Approves Project authority on the theater announces that the playwright must understand to Evolve "Perfect Manhood that his audience is the most important character in his play.

A combination of these two theories is Sylvester Z. Poli's idea of it, the close-mouthed conservative person who has made some millions of dollars in the theater by paying particular attention to his audiences, according to a state ment made by Mr. Poli just before leaving Washington after finishing up the work of presenting his new stock company in his renovated theater. The Poll Theater as it stands today, he states, is his idea of a real theater, because it is the audience to which par-ticular attention has been paid in its renovation and organization, and it is the audience that Mr. Polt declares rep-resents the life blood of the theatrical Transformation Complete.

The complete transformation of the old Poli had the Keith forces Poli auditorium into the fresh, clean interior that now greets the patrons of the house is how Mr. Poll's idea of using the audience in his business works out. For three years his audience had been in the habit of seeing the same hangings, the same curtain, the same dark interior. This has been changed in the five weeks the theater has been closed into a new picture. New hangings, a new curtain, a new aspect to the entire house.

The old wedding adage—"something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue"—applies to the Poli theatrical philosophy, changing "blue" to "old rose." The old building has been made over new and the deep has been made over new and the ideas of the best of playwrights are bored to conform to the general scheme rowed to conform to the general scheme of things. The make-up of the new company carries out the same idea—something old in the old and proven favorites, Van Buren, Kent, and Fillmere; something new in the new women of the company, Miss Rittenhouse, Miss Cameron, Miss Frederici and Miss Pinkney.

Miss Cameron, Miss Frederici and Miss Pinkney.

The matter of the ideas of the playwrights that are borrowed to provide the basis of amusement, however, can only be made known from week to week. It is the purpose of the management to give the Poll audiences the widest variety in the matter of plays and at the same time to give the newest plays that can be obtained. Thus, next week there will be "Jerry," a play that

Acting Secretary of the Navy Franklin Roosevelt has made public a plan to build up an adequate naval reserve in dilition to the existing State militia and the regular reserve provided for by the last Congress.

The plan contemplates mobilisation of heir craft with navy reserve ships in training squadron, not unlike the idea of the army camp at Plattsburg.

Roosevelt says the reserve of person nel should total 50,000 officers and men. Individuals are desired who are capable of doing the highly specialized work of modern navies.
